USED VEGETABLE OIL

Global warming is always in the news these days and we are more aware than ever of the problems of releasing carbon dioxide into the atmosphere. Now there is an opportunity for you to 'do your bit' for the environment. Green Valley Biofuels is a small, local co-operative producing biodiesel from used cooking oil. How does this help the environment? Well, biodiesel is "carbon neutral" This means that the carbon dioxide released when the fuel is burnt was originally taken up by the plants when they were growing - there is no net release of greenhouse gasses and unlike fossil fuel, biodiesel is a renewable energy resource.

Help us to help our environment

Green Valley Biofuels are committed to supporting local good causes and we are delighted to provide the Grantham Canal Society with free biodiesel for its trip boat MV 'Corvus'. As part of the canal's regeneration plan, the Corvus will operate between Grantham and Redmile, raising public awareness of the restoration and providing a fun day out on the canal. We wish the Society well and look forward to seeing the canal fully restored.
